1. Truth has become exceedingly relative. Recall a time you experienced something alongside someone else, and you KNOW they remember it incorrectly and you remember the truth. Or vice versa, where you were wrong and they remembered the truth.
2. What are the implications of the capitalization of both the word "Gospel" and "Truth" when referring to Jesus. What does it mean and why does it matter?
3. What are some things in your life that functionally and ideologically serve as truth instead of Jesus?
4. Would you be willing to describe a time when you experienced the intimate affection and tenderness of Jesus?
5. Julian of Norwich believes the central truth of our world is that it is good and sustained by Love. What are some situations in your life or in our world that you have a hard time understanding as opportunities to see the love of Jesus? What might it look like to take a step towards letting Jesus define love and goodness in these situations?
6. Have you ever experienced a fulfilled prophetic word in your life? How does that impact your view of the dozens of fulfilled prophecies about Jesus found in the Old Testament?
7. What is the most practical implication of the statement "Jesus is MY Gospel Truth," in your life today?
